17:41:05 From Elisabeth Green : The latest International Monetary Fund (IMF) report estimates $5.2 trillion was spent on fossil fuel subsidies in 2017. The NRDC estimates 8.7 million premature deaths attributed to the burning of fossil fuel globally in 2018.

<https://www.nrdc.org/stories/fossil-fuel-air-pollution-kills-one-five-people> That payment of $597,701 to kill each individual could instead have provided needed education to an equal number of nonreproductive, child-free women (cis-gendered women) for refraining from overpopulating the planet. The hostile or feeble-minded subsidizers of fossil fuel burning should be held accountable for the 8.7 million premature deaths.

According to the IMF, "fossil fuels account for 85 percent of all global subsidies,"
