Defining Community Architecture

- Who: David, Ry and Sean
- Why: Community Health, Project Growth and Support
- What:
 - Foster a successful collaborative software development ecosystem
 - Document the health of Projects and overall Hyperledger Community
 - Help Projects grow

Support

- Projects
 - Onboarding, Awareness, Marketing, Contribution, Training/Cert, Security Audits, Documentation, Legal, Developer Engagement
 - Resources: Websites, GitHub, Wiki, Mailing List, Chat, Zoom
- Infrastructure
 - Maintain Chat, Email List, GitHub, Zoom-YouTube infrastructure
- TSC and technical contributor communities
 - Facilitate and organize TSC Meetings
 - Drive successful adoption of open source development practices

Engage

- TSC on needs, directives, and Project health
- Project Maintainers on priorities and needs
- Contributor Communities to encourage contribution
- External Communities (HBCUs, NIST, IIW, etc.)
- Research w/ Community on needs and direction for the future

Grow

- Projects: Connect community members and attract contributors
- External communities: Educate on the mission of Hyperledger, the individual Projects and opportunities to learn and collaborate
- Contributor pipeline: through events, workshops, contribution campaigns, meetups, hackfests, etc.
- Grow the maintainer pipeline by working directly with Projects

 - #community-architects on Discord
- Surveys and polls
- Hyperledger Projects “In the Wild”
- How can we connect your project with other projects?
- Critical: What are the goals and objectives of Fabric for 2022?

Feedback

The campaign has catapulted our open source progress. A large number of folks are now aware of our project.

hey everyone! how can I contribute hyperledger Aries repository? I want to contribute to Aries through Javascript.

Thank you all for this extraordinary workshop. Wish we could have it in Spanish for our Hyperledger Latinoamerica Regional Chapter

As we at Siemens are very interested in pursuing this topic of building an identity solution (Decentralized one), this topic is of great interest to us in team.
